The 2012 Community Supervision Line Officer Award winners were recognized at the Judicial Advisory Council meeting during January in Austin. Nominated by their colleagues in recognition of their outstanding contributions to their profession, the five recipients are, from left, Javier Gonzalez of Webb County, Matthew Baldasari of Comal County, Veronica McClain of McLennan County, Beverly Baker of Angelina County and Kasi Yargo of Brazos County.

Carey Welebob, Texas Department of Criminal Justice Community Justice Assistance Division director, added, "We owe a debt of thanks to both the recipients of this award and all community supervision officers for providing the rehabilitative services which will divert probationers from further negative encounters with the judicial system." ●
