Lisa Hedgecock named HR Employee of the Year

The Texas Department of Criminal Justice Human Resources Division held its 16th annual Employee of the Year Luncheon last October at the Texas Prison Museum in Huntsville, where HR staff members who had been named Employee of the Month for fiscal year 2016 were presented with awards for outstanding performance. Lisa Hedgecock, Human Resources Specialist III from the Telford Unit, received special recognition as the HR Division Employee of the Year.

Hedgecock began her career with TDCJ in July of 1995 and has served as a Human Resources supervisor since July of 2012. With her exceptional communication skills, she has built strong, positive relationships with departments throughout the unit. After the tragic loss of Officer Timothy Davison at the Telford Unit in 2015, Hedgecock went above and beyond her normal duties by helping organize several meals for Officer Davison's family and working to ensure that no detail was overlooked during preparations for the memorial service.

TDCJ Human Resources Division Director Patty Garcia praised Hedgecock's achievements, saying "Her commitment to the employees of the Telford Unit and her professionalism to this agency are outstanding." Garcia also recognized all the division's employees of the month, noting that "These outstanding HR employees are to be commended for the professionalism they exhibit on a daily basis. They commit to higher standards of work performance and support for their colleagues."
