Executive Director Livingston honored by TPEA

In August, TDCJ Executive Director Brad Livingston was recognized by the Texas Public Employees Association with its 2015 Administrator of the Year Award.

Livingston, who has served as TDCJ executive director since November 2004, was first selected as TPEA's Administrator of the Year in 2007. His second selection in 2009 was the first time an administrator had been twice recognized by the ACA. This is the fourth time Livingston has been named Administrator of the Year by the TPEA, a nonpartisan association that serves as an advocate for state employees before the Texas Legislature. The Administrator of the Year Award honors excellence in public service and leadership in achieving goals benefiting state government, state employees and retirees.

TPEA Executive Director Gary W. Anderson explained why Livingston's work has so often earned recognition, saying, "We are continually impressed by Brad's long-term dedication to TDCJ and his commitment to the agency's employees. His dialogue with the Legislature has helped increase understanding and appreciation of not only the work of TDCJ but also state employees as a whole." ●
